

Pristina is the capital of Kosovo, and coal power generation in the country has burdened public health, the economy and the environment for decades. A particular concern for health protection in Pristina ...

Climate change is not globally uniform and affects some regions more than others. On the following diagrams, you can see how climate change has already affected the region of Pristina during the ...

According to Augustin Maria, Program Manager for the Gap Fund, what was done in Pristina could become a blueprint for the future of sustainable, climate-resilient urban communities globally.

That's nothing new in the Western Balkans, which is considered one of the world's hotspots of climate change. Kosovo has experienced heat waves since the 1960s, heavy rains ...

A comprehensive report from the World Bank, titled "Reshaping Cities: Readyng Cities in the Western Balkans for a Changing Climate," underscores the urgency of equipping cities like ...

A recent study on the UHI effect in Pristina confirmed this, saying that the city is hotter compared to areas with a higher level of vegetation, citing Pristina's population density and lack of ...

As a results, local leaders gained the skills and insights necessary to identify alternative policies and investments in energy, transport and urban planning that will help Pristina transition to a ...

The current climate change severity in Prishtina is High, with a 0.1% improvement in the climate score compared to last 15 years. This suggests improved conditions, with more favorable environmental ...

The sessions talked about the need to adapt and reduce climate change and the critical need to switch to greener energy sources.

Climate change is an urgent environmental challenge faced by 21st-century cities (IPCC, 2011). These cities are highly vulnerable to climatological hazards. As a result, global warming, rising...

Web: <https://www.toptradegniezno.pl>

